In the absence of President Bollinger, Executive Committee chair Jeanine D’Armiento (Ten., VP&S) called the Senate to order shortly after 1:15 pm on Zoom. Eighty-six of 106 senators were present during the meeting.

Minutes and agenda. The agenda was adopted as proposed (November 20 Plenary Binder, 1).

Adoption of the minutes. The minutes of October 23 were adopted as proposed (Binder, 2-12).

Executive Committee Chair’s report:

Update on the COVID-19 pandemic: Dr. Wafaa El-Sadr, University Professor. Prof. El-Sadr presented her slides (Binder, 13-34).

Update on the Fall 2020 surveys on students’ instructional experience: Dr. Donna Lynne, Senior Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, CUIMC, and Director of the University’s Covid response. Dr. Lynne presented her slides (Binder, 35-38)

Old business:

Proposed Senate changes (Senate Structure and Operations Committee): Sens. Daniel Savin (Research Officers), S&O Committee co-chair, and Brendan O’Flaherty (Ten., A&S/Social Sciences), an S&O member, presented three resolutions.

Resolution to Amend the University Senate By-Laws to Address Electronic Meetings. Sens. Savin and O’Flaherty presented the resolution (Binder, 39-40). With minimal discussion, it was adopted by a unanimous vote of 70-0, without abstentions.

Resolution to Ratify Senate Actions for the Period from April 3 to October 23, 2020. Sens. Savin and O’Flaherty presented the resolution (Binder, 44). With minimal discussion, it was approved by a vote of 69-1, without abstentions).

New business:

Resolution in Support of the Continuum Program for Diversity in Graduate Education and Career Development (Commission on Diversity and Student Affairs Committee). Stephanie McCurry, the R. Gordon Hoxie Professor of American History in Honor of Dwight D. Eisenhower, and faculty co-chair of the Diversity Commission, spoke to the resolution and summarized its supporting report, along with Colby King, a Columbia College student and a member of the Commission (Binder, 45-56).

After the initial presentation, Mr. King spoke of his personal experience. He said that it was the idea of a continuum program aimed to fulfill the commitment to diversity that made him fall in love with Columbia. As he was considering colleges in his junior year in high school, he came across “Columbia University and Slavery,” a January 2017 presentation of the results of an extensive study of Columbia’s connections to slavery in the 18th and 19th centuries. Mr. King recited, verbatim, a portion of President Bollinger’s introductory remarks at that event:

I've been deeply involved in affirmative action, higher education issues for a couple of decades. And it is, in my mind, one of the biggest mistakes that we made in the development of constitutional law, in a case called Bakke in the early 80s, to separate out the past and what it means for the present as a rationale for educational diversity, and something we made up called the benefits of educational diversity. As if those two things could be separated. And this is a long and difficult argument, issue, but to me it makes no sense whatsoever to think about constitutional principles or public policies or institutional actions except in the light of what it is that we have today. And what we have today is absolutely and deeply determined by what we've had in the past.

Mr. King said he found these words from an Ivy League university president exciting and shocking. Later he would be admitted to seven Ivy colleges as well as MIT and Stanford. At his graduation party, an uncle noted that Mr. King was six generations away from slavery, bringing assembled family, friends, and teachers to tears. Mr. King said he is a first-generation college student, son of a working-class single mother in Texas, and he was the first student from his majority-minority high school to enroll in an Ivy League school. He chose Columbia because of what he saw then and still sees now as its unique commitment to students from underrepresented backgrounds. He said that if the purpose of academia is to investigate the questions of the world, in order to guide humanity towards its brightest future, it was important to make sure that all people's questions can be openly investigated. And that can only happen if the support and pathways are provided to enable that possibility. He said he had benefited back in high school from programs similar to those outlined in the Commission report, which had helped him get to Columbia. He said the Continuum Program would help students like him get beyond their undergraduate degrees.

Prof. McCurry gave particular thanks to the deans of the graduate schools and the diversity officers who had provided data under difficult conditions, and helped to imagine a program that could help a future generation of students complete graduate educations at Columbia.

Sen. D’Armiento invited discussion.

Sen. Alden Bush (Stu., Nursing) thanked Mr. King and Prof. McCurry and expressed support for the resolution. He praised the idea of a unit in the central administration to coordinate the efforts of schools and develop a more standardized practice across Columbia. As a Latino student and an LGBT community member, he particularly appreciated this step.
Sen. Elizabeth Gillette (Stu., Social Work) said the resolution supported a key endeavor outlined in Columbia’s mission statement: “We seek to attract a diverse and international faculty and student body to support research and teaching on global issues and to create academic relationships with many countries and regions.”

Sen. June Cross (Ten., Journalism) appreciated what she called a wonderful presentation. She said Columbia was now heading into a period of real austerity, and she worried about Columbia’s ability to make more financial aid available to more students. She knew that her school faced that issue.

Sen. Andrew Marks (Ten., VP&S) said the report was extremely important. Speaking from the perspective of the Medical School, he said there is a drop-off in the level of support for underrepresented students at a crucial stage—after they finish graduate school and start their careers. So University support is critical at that point, particularly after the investments Columbia makes in helping students reach and then get through graduate school.

Sen. D’Armiento said she wanted to continue the discussion but also to put the resolution to support the recommendations in the report on the table.

Sen. Suzanne Goldberg (Admin.) echoed the thanks others had expressed to the Diversity Commission. She stressed the importance from her own experience as EVP for University Life of connecting across all of the Columbia schools, and sharing best practices and ideas. Sen. Goldberg also invited senators to an open meeting of the Inclusive Public Safety Working Group. She alerted students to an opportunity to apply for racial justice mini-grants similar to the seed grants that Vice Provost Dennis Mitchell’s office has been providing. In addition, her office was working on a range of ideas in response to the president’s volunteers charge from the previous summer. She said these initiatives, seemingly tangential to the business now before the Senate, were related to it in deeper ways.

Sen. Mike Ford (Stu., GSAS/Hum) praised the Commission on Diversity for its work on behalf of historically underrepresented groups, and praised the resolution. In order to make explicit what he saw as an important point that was implicit in the resolution, he moved to amend the resolution to include the following addition [in bold text]:

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT the Senate support the adoption of the Continuum Program for Diversity in Graduate Education and Career Development, an initiative on racial equity in graduate education designed to secure greater opportunity and access for talented domestic and international students from historically underrepresented groups to our world-class graduate programs and the professional careers such education opens up.

Sen. Ford said the resolution as presented supported students from historically underrepresented groups, but the accompanying document, citing the Provost’s Office website, states that the term “historically underrepresented groups” refers exclusively to U.S. citizens and permanent residents. He said his amendment would gently correct the resolution’s omission of international students.
Sen. D’Armiento said there had been lengthy discussion of this very point in the Diversity Commission. She recognized Sen. Andrea White (Ten., UTS), Prof. McCurry’s successor as the Commission’s faculty co-chair.

Sen. White expressed gratitude for everything that had been put forward to the Senate at the present meeting. Thinking of the many discussions that led to the present report, she said the proposed Continuum Program was actually designed to enhance campus culture for all students, and not to create competition between groups. Her own phrase for this effort, derived from the Africa-American scholar and activist Anna Julia Cooper, was the “when and where I enter” action plan. The full citation was “When and where I entered, then and there others will enter with me.” The Continuum Program would focus on historically underrepresented groups in the United States, but its effects would disseminate throughout the University’s racial environment. She said it would actually contribute to coalition building in anti-racism efforts, with the goal of advancing the intellectual life of the university as a whole.

Sen. Nachum Sicherman (Ten., Business) said the Business School now has two main efforts. It has a vice dean for diversity, and also now a special task force focusing on African-American students. He said the task force gave a report recently that was shocking. He asked whether the Diversity Commission could communicate with the task force about its findings, and whether there were similar efforts in other schools.

Prof. McCurry said the Commission had considered aggregate admissions data across all Columbia schools, and also looked at specific data on applications, admissions of students, and student acceptances of those admissions at three schools: the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the Vagelos College of Physicians and Surgeons, and the School of Engineering and Applied Science. The Commission also consulted with the deans of various schools. It was clear that a lot of work is going on in the schools, and each of them has reports and initiatives and data. The Commission was trying to build on precisely these efforts, collecting the data and the reports in one place, so that the next investigators wouldn’t have to go to each school to get them. Prof. McCurry said the Commission got some of the information it sought, but not all. She invited Sen. Sicherman to share what he had learned with the Commission and help reach the goal of this resolution—a central clearinghouse for this kind of information. She said the Commission’s report offers examples of ways to create a better climate and outcome for historically underrepresented graduate students, based on diversity reports and conversations with diversity officers in the individual schools.

Sen. Weiping Wu (Ten., GSAPP) said Prof. McCurry had just answered the question she was going to ask.

Prof. McCurry added that the data do vary across the schools. The Commission had access to granular departmental data for one school, which showed that different departments have different challenges and choke points. She said the Engineering School is particularly concerned about the challenge of increasing the participation of historically underrepresented groups in the STEM disciplines. She said this situation was referenced in the report, but each school knows precisely the depth and complexity of its own challenges.
Sen. Andrej Arpas (Stu., GSAS/Social Sciences) stressed the importance of the change that Sen. Ford had proposed. He said it was important to mention international students explicitly to make sure that they will avail themselves of the proposed programming. He also wondered why there is no data on the racial make-up of the international student population, as there is for the domestic population. He thought that might be because of how historically underrepresented groups were being defined. A historical definition seems to imply a particular geography. Historical underrepresentation would mean something different in, for instance, China than in the United States. So, it might be difficult to create a single definition encompassing both domestic and international students. However, if there is data on the racial make-up of international students, it would be important to include it, to provide proper support for the present resolution.

Sen. D’Armiento responded that Prof. McCurry had said at the outset that the Commission, in the current report and resolution, was responding to a particular moment in time.

Sen. Ramsay Eyre (Stu., CC), a co-chair of the Student Affairs Committee, joined in the praise for the resolution; on behalf of SAC he called for its passage at the present meeting. He also agreed with Sen. D’Armiento that the document was addressed to a moment in time, and added that the historically underrepresented groups mentioned in the resolution are population groups in the United States identified by the federal government. He said it was clear that the purpose of the central administrative unit proposed by the resolution was to make conditions for these historically underrepresented groups more equitable at Columbia. He said that whether the Senate were to pass Sen. Ford’s amendment or not, it was vital to pass the resolution to help redress these inequities.

Sen. D’Armiento asked the parliamentarian, Linda Mischel Eisner, for procedural guidance. Ms. Eisner said the amendment was on the table, and needed to be seconded and voted on. She paraphrased it.

The amendment was seconded.

Sen. McCurry said she totally understood the sentiment behind the proposed amendment, but added that the proposition was complex. One reason was that the proportion of international students had actually grown significantly at Columbia over the past decade. The other reason was that the term “historically underrepresented groups” in the resolution refers to the history of this country, and those populations that have suffered particularly, by the metrics she had mentioned earlier. These are the people of color, and most importantly the people of African descent in this country. All of these people have a particular history in this country. She said the status of historically underrepresented groups in China, or in India, or in Ireland, or in Eastern Europe, or in the former Yugoslavia—these are all complicated questions that scholars study. But the purpose of the present resolution is to attempt to mitigate the implications of historical inequities in this country.

Prof. McCurry concluded that the problem of historically underrepresented groups around the world was a separate issue. She said Columbia’s International Students and Scholars Office (ISSO) has its own initiatives. In her department—History—there are all kinds of minority students, and students of color from all over the world. And this is one reason why Columbia is amazing. But that does not undercut the fact that there are particular histories borne by people in the United States.

Sen. White invoked President Bollinger’s anti-racism statement of July 21, in which he acknowledged what he called the “unfinished civil rights movement,” and spoke of the persistence of a painful and still unresolved history. He said the commitment to battle racism can't be limited to the African American and African Diaspora Studies Department. He identified a whole host of offices to support students, faculty and staff, but he wanted to speak to the fundamental issue of racism in the United States. Sen. White said President Bollinger’s statement actually offered a charge for a new civil rights movement.

Sen. Ford said his concern was that the burdens of the history of racism in the United States fall not only on U.S. citizens, but also on international students from Peru, or Kenya, or elsewhere. Would the office now being proposed exclude support for those students?

Sen. D’Armiento said some events will include all students in the community. But the Commission’s proposal was addressing what happened in this country.

Mr. King said it was important to say that any black person, from anywhere in the world, will experience racism in the United States. This was a particular thing to say for someone like him, whose ancestors were slaves here, and went through Jim Crow here, and other experiences that have confined them in communities that they can’t get out of. But it was also important to clarify that these are still two different issues. And it was important to make sure that Columbia’s international student population is also diverse, with representation from around the world. But it was particularly important to focus in this particular instance on people of color in the United States. Without this particular focus, Columbia might find itself with more people that look like him, but African-Americans might still not be here. He had already experienced such a situation as an undergraduate. He said that issue was painful for him, but important to understand. He said he would never pit black people here against black people from around the world. But it was important to address the real issues critically and intentionally. He said it made sense to focus on one part of the problem. Another resolution could address the diversity of the international student population.

Sen. Mignon Moore (Ten., Barnard) thanked Mr. King for a beautiful explanation, and for covering many points she was going to cover. She noted a significant expansion of access for international students since 2010, and said it was important to understand concretely who those students are. The present resolution was meant to address the systematic inequalities of the people who are citizens here, who have over generations experienced tremendous loss associated with racial inequality that persists today. This was the focus of the resolution, never intending to forget others across the world who are still trying to be free.

Sen. D’Armiento judged that the discussion was at an end. She asked all senators to turn on their cameras, so everyone could see who was voting. She then reread the amendment aloud.
She asked for everyone in favor of the amendment to press their green “yes” button. She then asked to have the green buttons cleared, and then asked for all opposed to press their green buttons.

The amendment failed by a vote of 3-46 with three abstentions.

Sen. D’Armiento then called for a vote on the Diversity Commission resolution. It passed by a vote of 67-0 with two abstentions.

Committee annual reports

At the end of the report, Sen. Shelley Saltzman asked whether the tally of “non-tenured” faculty in Columbia housing in Sen. Martuscello’s presentation included non-tenure-track faculty. Sen. Martuscello said she didn’t know, but would find out and get back to Sen. Saltzman.

Adjourn. Sen. D’Armiento adjourned the meeting at around 2:30 pm.

Respectfully submitted,

Decline in COVID-19 Vaccine Acceptance

Potential contributors:

- Politicization of COVID-19 response measures including vaccines
- Changing attitudes on the importance of vaccines
- Discomfort regarding who is driving decisions
- Concern regarding whether vaccines would have been properly tested for safety and efficacy
- Lack of confidence that vaccine development is taking into account the needs of subpopulations disproportionately impacted by the pandemic

Vaccine Acceptance in New York

New York State:

- Siena College research poll found that 69% of New Yorkers said they will definitely or probably get an FDA-approved COVID-19 vaccine

New York City:

Surveys conducted among front-line workers have found:

- 55% of NYC firefighters answered “No” when asked, “Will you get the COVID-19 Vaccine from Pfizer when the Department makes it available?” (N=2,053) (December 2020)

- Only 30% of MTA workers were definitely willing to be vaccinated (N=645) (August 2020)

RESOLUTION TO UPDATE THE UNIVERSITY SENATE ELECTIONS CODE

BE IT RESOLVED that the University Senate approve the updated University Senate Elections Code, as set out, below.

1. ESTABLISHMENT.

a. Elections Code. This code shall be known as the Elections Code.

b. Elections Commission. The University Senate hereby creates an Elections Commission whose primary duty shall be to supervise the conduct of elections to the Senate and all other elective bodies whose power derives from the Senate, and all elections authorized under the Statutes of the University and the By-Laws of the University Senate, except for the election of members of the Elections Commission. The Senate, in plenary session, shall choose the members of the Elections Commission, nominations being made initially by the Executive Committee.

c. Membership. The Elections Commission shall consist of five members who may or may not be members of the University Senate and who shall be elected as follows: one tenured faculty member, one non-tenured faculty member, one student, one administration member, and one member from among the administrative, library and research staffs. The terms of the tenured faculty member, the non-tenured faculty member and the student shall begin at the first plenary session of the Senate in academic years that begin in even-numbered years, and run to the first plenary session of the academic year two years thence. The terms of the other members shall begin at the first plenary session of the Senate in academic years that begin in odd-numbered years, and run to the first plenary session of the academic year two years thence. The Elections Commission shall elect a chair at its first meeting following the first plenary session of the Senate in an academic year that begins in an even-numbered year. The Chair shall serve a two-year term as chair and until a successor has been chosen by the Elections Commission. The tradition of the Senate has been that the student member be a student at the Law School and that that student be chosen to chair the Elections Commission. In the event of a vacancy in the office of chair, the Elections Commission, at one of its next two meetings, shall select a replacement to complete the term. In the event of a member vacancy, the Senate, at one of its next two plenary sessions, shall select a replacement to complete the term.
d. Purpose and Scope. The purpose of this Elections Code is to provide a comprehensive set of rules and regulations to all parties concerning the conduct of University Senate elections. For such elections, these rules and regulations take precedence over any rules, regulations, policies, or practices adopted or followed by the various Divisional Elections Commissions established under this Code.

e. Operations. The Elections Commission shall follow the By-Laws of the University Senate regarding the operations of committees.

f. Additional Rules. The Elections Commission may make such further rules, consistent with this Elections Code, as it deems necessary and appropriate for the conduct of elections, and shall report such further rules to the University Senate, which may overrule or amend them.

g. Guidance from Previous Elections Commission Rulings. The Elections Commission shall maintain and make available a record of its rulings as guidance for future matters.

2. PROVISIONS RELATING TO ALL ELECTIONS.

   a. Definitions. The word “constituency” is used with the same sense as in Section 1(c) of the By-Laws of the University Senate. The words “electoral caucus” are used with the same sense as in Section 3 of the By-Laws of the University Senate.

   b. Election Dates. The Elections Commission shall declare the dates of all University Senate elections, except as specified in the By-Laws of the University Senate and in this Elections Code. The Elections Commission may from time to time delegate such responsibilities to the Divisional Elections Commissions or the Senate staff, as appropriate.

   c. Divisional Elections Commissions.

      i. The Elections Commission may request the assistance of a Divisional Elections Commission for any constituency or electoral caucus. The Elections Commission shall work with the appropriate administrative officers, including the deans of the faculties and presidents of the affiliated institutions, to establish such commissions, giving due regard to the advice of such divisional representative bodies as exist. Such Divisional Elections Commissions may be appointed or elected. In case a Divisional Elections Commission does not exist at the time of an election, the Elections Commission may make whatever ad hoc arrangements it deems necessary.

      ii. Insofar as University Senate elections are concerned, all Divisional Elections Commissions must abide by rules and regulations laid down by the Elections Commission. If a Divisional Elections Commission would like to adopt rules, regulations, or practices in addition to the Senate’s, they must be submitted to the Elections Commission for approval the semester before each election. In no case can Divisional Elections Commissions adopt rules, regulations or practices affecting eligibility to vote or stand in an election.

iii. Divisional Elections Commissions shall adopt procedures for candidates to petition the Divisional Elections Commission for redress of any alleged infraction of this Elections Code and shall notify candidates of such procedures in accordance with this Code.

d. Notice. Every candidate shall be informed that a copy of this Elections Code and of the Statues, By-Laws, and Rules of the Columbia University Senate are available on the Senate website.

e. Election Practices. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall observe the following practices in dealing with nominations:

i. All candidates shall be permitted to publicize their own candidacies and all persons may seek support for themselves or for others. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall, however, issue stringent limits on campaign expenditures so that no prospective candidate shall suffer a financial handicap. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall make available, to the extent possible, a common form of publicity (e.g., bulletinboard) enabling all candidates to announce their candidacies free of charge.

ii. Every candidate is accountable not only for violations of campaign rules and regulations that they might commit, but also for any such violations committed by people that the candidate has allowed to work on their campaign.

f. Electronic Communications.

i. All candidates shall be permitted to publicize their own candidacies and all persons may seek support for themselves or for others through means of electronic communications, on University systems, or on third party systems over the internet, except as restricted or prohibited under this Elections Code.

ii. The following are prohibited with regard to electronic communications conveying electioneering statements: vulgar, obscene, or abusive language or images; unsupported accusations, defamation, or threats of any kind; offensive terms targeted at persons or groups of persons in a way intended to be disparaging; advertisements or language focused primarily on promoting commercial interests or services; spam, or communications containing subject matter wholly unrelated to elections.

iii. In governing the use of electronic communications for campaigning, the Elections Commission or the Divisional Elections Commissions may restrict or prohibit the use of electronic communications on third party systems for campaigning and publicity statements, as reasonably appropriate.

g. Balloting Practices. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall observe the following practices in dealing with balloting:

i. Unless otherwise specific in this Elections Code, all voting shall be secret, either (1) in designated polling places, or (2) by written ballot in one or more meetings, or (3) by mail ballot using the double envelope system, or (4) by electronic ballot. Should the Divisional Elections Commission decide to conduct voting by electronic means, the system used shall provide for password-protected voting or other means reasonably calculated to ensure that all voting is carried out by the proper constituents of the relevant constituency and that each voter may cast only the proper number of votes. In all cases, a reasonable time (preferably at least seven days) shall be allowed for balloting.

ii. On the ballots and in all statements and announcements related to elections, the Elections Commission and Divisional Elections Commissions shall supply only the following kinds of information about candidates: name, department, and position. The Elections Commission and Divisional Elections Commissions shall in no way distinguish incumbent candidates or any preferred list from any other candidate on ballots and all election-related statements. These restrictions do not apply to the statements of the candidates themselves, including written candidates’ statements that may accompany the ballot, which shall be consistent with this Elections Code.

iii. Election may require a majority vote or plurality, according to previously established practice or decision of the Elections Commission or Divisional Elections Commission, provided that in no case may a plurality of less than a third be deemed to warrant election, using as a basis of calculation the total number of voters voting in an election; and if a plurality of a third thus calculated is not attained, there shall be a run-off election for those seats which are unfilled.

iv. In place of the balloting method described in the previous paragraph, a constituency may substitute a system of preferential balloting, in which voters rank several candidates in order by preference. In preferential balloting, the one-third plurality requirement set forth in the previous paragraph is waived.

v. In case a run-off election is needed, the Elections Commission or Divisional Elections Commission shall fix a date and shall declare eligible the highest-ranking candidates from the first election willing to continue to stand, up to twice the number of vacancies still to be filled, with the following exception: if two or more candidates in the first election tie for the last runner-up position eligible for the run-off (e.g., second place in a one-seat election), each can take part in the run-off, even though there will then be more than twice as many candidates as seats. In a run-off election the highest-ranking candidate(s) shall be elected. The run-off election must meet the same plurality requirements as other elections.

vi. Each candidate may have a poll-watcher present at polling places and at the counting of ballots for his or her constituency. Ballots shall be counted by the Divisional Elections Commission and reported immediately to the Elections Commission.

h. Due Process. When the Elections Commission receives a complaint filed with it in connection with any University Senate election, it shall proceed as follows:

i. Distribute promptly a copy of the complaint to each candidate in that election, the Divisional Elections Commission, and any other person with a bona fide interest in the matter;

ii. Give any candidate who may be materially affected by the decision an opportunity to be heard before rendering the decision;

iii. Put any decision in response to such a complaint in writing, with copies given to each candidate in that election, the Divisional Elections Commission, and any person with a bona fide interest in the matter; and

iv. Dismiss the complaint on written notice to the complainant without complying with other aspects of this rule, if the Commission determines that a complaint is plainly baseless.

i. Appeals before Ballots have been counted. If, between the declaration of a vacancy and the counting of ballots, a member of a constituency, whether or not a candidate, feels aggrieved by the rules or practices of a Divisional Elections Commission, they may appeal to the Elections Commission for adjudication, which shall act and redress, where appropriate as expeditiously as possible.

j. Contested Elections after Ballots have been counted. Once the ballots have been counted, any challenge to the credentials of a successful candidate on the grounds of substantial error in procedure shall be heard by the Elections Commission, which shall report its recommendations to the University Senate. The decision of the Elections Commission shall be final unless overturned by the Senate. For elections to the Senate, any person whose victory has been certified shall have a vote in the Senate, unless and until the Senate refuses to accept their credentials, on all matters except a vote on their own credentials.

k. Authority of the Chair in Time-Sensitive Matters. In the event that a time-sensitive matter comes before the Elections Commission and it would not be practicable to timely convene the full membership of the Commission, the Chair of the Commission shall have the authority to decide the matter on behalf of the Commission. If the Chair makes such a decision, the Chair shall promptly inform the membership of the Commission, which may deliberate and vote to modify the decision of the Chair. Additionally, the Commission may reconsider the decision of the Chair in a time-sensitive matter so long as the matter has not become moot before the appeal can be heard.

3. ELECTION OF UNIVERSITY SENATE MEMBERS. Elections for members of the Senate shall be held in accordance with the Statutes of the University and the By-Laws of the University Senate.

a. Definitions. The word “category” is used with same sense as in Chapter II of the Statutes of the University. The word “faculty” is used with the same sense as in Section 30 of the Statutes of the University.

b. Apportionment. The Elections Commission shall advise the University Senate on the apportionment of seats as provided in Chapter II of the Statutes of the University and subject to the additional provisions in the By-Laws of the University Senate. The populations to be compared for this purpose shall be counted for officers of instruction as prescribed in Sections 20.b.1 and 20.b.2 of the Statutes, and for students as prescribed in Section 20.c of the Statutes.

c. Constituency Membership. The Elections Commission shall determine, in case of dispute, into which constituency an elector falls. Any individual who believes he or she has been incorrectly omitted from a constituency or incorrectly assigned to a constituency shall inform the Divisional Elections Commission and, if the problem is not resolved, may appeal to the Elections Commission for adjudication, which shall act and redress, where appropriate, as expeditiously as possible.

d. Election Notice. Whenever the election of one or more Senators is required, the Elections Commission shall issue an election notice. This election notice shall specify the membership of the Divisional Elections Commission that shall conduct the election and the approximate date of the election subject to final determination by the Divisional Elections Commission. The election notice shall also delineate the members or affiliates of the University community who are eligible to vote in this election and who are eligible to be candidates in this election

e. Election Practices. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall observe the following practices in dealing with nominations:

i. Notice of all information pertinent to an election (including relevant deadlines) must be provided at least seven calendar days before the nomination deadline to all eligible constituency members, using the method most likely to give actual notice to those members. Such notice may not include references to any potential candidates.

ii. During the nomination period, each member of a constituency has the right to make nominations up to the number of candidates to be elected. Self-nominations are allowed and can be made by submitting a signed statement of intent to run to the Divisional Elections Commission by the nomination deadline.

iii. The nomination of anyone who is not a member of the constituency on the day before the election commences shall be invalid.

iv. Notice shall be provided, using the method most likely to give actual notice, of the names of the candidates and the election process (including all deadlines and a description of the quorum requirement) to all members of the constituency eligible to vote. This information may be provided on the election ballot. This notice shall be given at least seven calendar days before the actual balloting period commences.

f. Election Materials. Each Divisional Elections Commission shall submit its election materials to the Elections Commission no later than when the materials become available to the constituency. The Elections Commission may require any relevant materials to be submitted in the event of a dispute about an election.

g. Electronic Communications. Each Divisional Elections Commission may adopt rules governing the use of such communications and electronic media, which shall be consistent with this Elections Code, and shall notify candidates of such regulations in a timely manner prior to commencement of elections.

h. Vacancies. The Elections Commission shall declare a vacancy in the University Senate if a member dies, resigns, is recalled, or ceases to belong to the constituency from which they were elected, and shall direct that a by-election be held within a reasonable time. The Elections Commission may from time to time delegate such responsibility to the Senate staff.
i. Recall. A recall petition, as provided in Section 21.h of the Statutes, shall be submitted to the Elections Commission, which shall certify its validity, in consultation with the Divisional Elections Commission, and shall direct that a recall election be held as expeditiously as reasonable.

4. ELECTION OF UNIVERSITY SENATE OFFICERS BY THE SENATE, BY ELECTORAL CAUCUSES OF THE SENATE, OR BY SENATE COMMITTEES.

   a. Eligible Voters. The eligible voters for an office are the Senators, or appropriate subset of Senators, who are currently serving on the day preceding the start of the voting period for that office. For the election of the chair of a committee other than the executive committee, any individual who is not a Senator but is a member of the committee may also vote.

   b. Quorums. All University Senate bodies require a quorum, as defined in the By-Laws of the University Senate, to take any actions under this Elections Code. Whenever any Senate body does not have a quorum to take an action required under this Code, the action will be required at the next regularly scheduled meeting for which there is a quorum.

   c. Election of the Chair of the Executive Committee. Whenever there is an election for Chair of the Executive Committee, the Elections Commission shall determine the rules for this election and shall supervise this election. The rules shall be posted on the University Senate website no later seven days before the nomination period begins. The nomination period shall last at least seven days. The campaign period shall be no longer than seven days. The election period shall be at least seven days.

   d. Election of Other Elected Members of the Executive Committee. Each electoral caucus election process shall take place in a meeting of the respective caucus, and shall be by secret ballot. The election of members of the Executive Committee by electoral caucuses shall be conducted by Divisional Elections Commissions appointed by the Elections Commission. The Elections Commission shall appoint a Divisional Elections Commission for each electoral caucus only after consulting with the caucus, and considering its traditional mode of nominating or electing members of the Executive Committee.

   e. Election of Chairs of Committees other than the Executive Committee. Each committee as part of its first meeting after a reorganization of the University Senate shall elect its chair or co-chairs.

   f. Election of Members of Committees other than the Executive Committee. The University Senate, in its first plenary session of the academic year, shall elect the members of each of the other committees as a regular order of business. Senators shall be elected in odd-numbered years to two-year terms. In even-numbered years, continuing Senators who are a member of a committee continue to serve and are therefore not subject to election. Non-senators shall be elected to one-year terms. In the event of a member vacancy, the Senate, at one of its next two plenary sessions, shall elect a replacement to complete the term.

g. Election Practices. The Elections Commission and each Divisional Elections Commission shall observe the following practices in dealing with nominations:

NYU Response to Coronavirus Accelerates Digital Tool Adoption

By Dier Schaffhauser 02/28/20

When New York University closed its NYU Shanghai campus in response to the COVID-19 epidemic in China, little did it know how much students would appreciate the efforts the university went through to keep their learning on track. The spring 2020 semester kicked off with school officials determined to use digital tools to deliver learning online as an alternative. More than a thousand undergraduate and graduate students and faculty have signed on to participate in virtual lectures, discussions and more physical activities from

Learning Through Synchronous & Asynchronous Discussion
Discussions can be meaningful and engaging learning experiences: dynamic, eye-opening, and generative. This resource presents key considerations in class discussions and offers strategies for how instructors can prepare and engage in effective synchronous and asynchronous classroom discussions.

Promoting Academic Integrity
While it is each student’s responsibility to understand and abide by university standards towards individual work and academic integrity, instructors can help students understand their responsibilities through frank classroom conversations that go beyond policy language to shared values. By creating a learning environment that stimulates engagement and designing assessments that are authentic, instructors can minimize the incidence of academic dishonesty.

Teaching During & After the 2020 US Elections
The 2020 US Elections can be stressful for both instructors and students, thereby impacting the learning environment in your courses. These stressors are compounded by the ongoing pandemic. Regardless of the outcome of the elections, instructors can take steps to ensure that both they and their students are supported during this time.
